Why do children from poorer countries seem so much happier than youth from richer nations? Is it just because they have less things?

In order to truly hear the voice of God and enter into a relationship with Him, we need to be detached from material possessions, detached from our obsessions and detached from wanting to get everything our own way.

All three readings this Sunday point to the fact that we need to have this detachment in order to develop a healthy relationship with God. When God says to Jonah – “Up and go to Nineveh”, he goes immediately, St Paul reminds us that if we deal with the world, that we “should not become engrossed in it,” and in the Gospel Andrew, Simon, James and John all immediately stop what they are doing to follow Jesus. And if we too are serious about having a relationship with God, we must not become too attached to any worldly thing.

We need to ask ourselves: What am I attached to? Social media? Shopping? Gossiping? A career? God is there in every moment of our lives asking us to follow him, and perhaps the best thing we can do for ourselves is just spend less time scrolling on our phone and more time in prayer.

Spending time with God is the best thing you can do for your soul. It will give you peace in this life and eternal joy in the next.

Children from poorer countries have much to teach us about happiness. Because they have less, they are much more grateful for simpler things and how often do we just stop and thank God for the simple fact that He loves us? To have more of God in your life, let us be happy with having less.

The Good News

from the Archdiocese of Brisbane

Bishop Tim has a message for you

This week I am working with the staff of five Catholic schools. These days before school begins are used for information-sharing and formation as well as welcome and orientation for staff members. In the past two years, I have been mightily impressed by the creativity and enthusiasm of teachers across the Archdiocese. Mission certainly had its challenges in my years in Mexico. But the challenges of faith formation for young people in a secular environment like Australia are more testing still. Let's pray for teachers right across the Archdiocese as they prepare to welcome thousands of young people back to school next week.

COUNTERS:

This week: Group 4: M. Jackson, B. & M. Barker, T. Leahy, K. Grundy, V. Richmond

Next week: Group 1: E. Lawrence, T. McCorley, D. Kelly, T. Keegan
